Trash Service Will Be Delayed by One Day

Bulky Item Pick-Up

The next Bulky Item Pick-Up will begin Monday, October 14. Lewisville residents wishing to participate in the pick-up should have all acceptable bulky items curbside by 6 a.m. on that day.

Bulky item collection events are held twice a year and provide Lewisville residents with an easy and convenient way to dispose of unwanted, large items that would otherwise be taken to the landfill.

This event is intended for the disposal of items too large to fit within a trash cart.

A list of acceptable and prohibited items is on page 7. If Waste Management identifies a contaminated collection pile, the site will not be serviced. This list and more information can also be found at lewisvillenc.net/bulky.

See pg. 7 for more

Shalloween Festival

It's that time of year! The days are growing shorter and the leaves are beginning to change. But most excitingly, it marks the return of the annual Shalloween Festival at Shallowford Square!

This festival will be on Saturday, October 19, from 1-2:30 p.m.

This is an event for ghouls and goblins ages 0-12 years old.

Festivities include a costume contest, arts & crafts, pumpkin decorating, and plenty of games to play. There will also be a magic show from 2-2:30 p.m.

In the case of inclement weather, the event will be held at the Mary Alice Warren Community Center and the update will be posted on the Town's website and social media accounts.

Join us for a hauntingly good time!

Planning Director Cochran

Lynn Cochran

We are delighted to welcome Lynn Cochran to the Town as our new Planning Director! His first day with Lewisville was August 12.

Mayor Mike Horn said, "We are pleased to have Lynn join our staff and bring his expertise and experience in planning." Horn looks forward to this addition, as Lewisville is one of the fastest-growing towns in Forsyth County.

Cochran is experienced in planning, having worked in the field since 2017. The first plan-

From Your Mayor Can We Talk?

I come from a blended family.

My mother was a college-degreed Republican teacher. My father was a high school drop-out Democrat renegade. They met at the Army's Air Force base in Presque Isle, Maine during WWII. Dad got the bombers ready for the trip across the Atlantic to Great Britain. Mom kept the paperwork for the base commander.

During their off hours, they were Contract Bridge partners who, later in life, would attain National Master status.

I offer this background to illustrate that these two, who were very different, were really smart cookies.

Dinner at our house was an experience. We were not very well off financially, but we ate well. We lived on an island in the Florida Keys where seafood was abundant and cheaper than beef.

But as much as the lobster, stone crab, and yellowtail snapper, I remember the conversations at the dinner table.

When Dad would make a statement about politics, Mom would take the opposite view. And off they went. To say that their conversation was engaging would be an understatement. Oftentimes, there was no winner declared.

What I most remember about those conversations were not the points in contention, but that when it came time to clear the table, neither of them was angry with the other.

I've written many times before about civility, respect, and tolerance and how important it is to have conversations and not confrontations with others of differing opinions.

However somehow, at this most precarious point in time, many of us have become so entrenched in our positions that we don't want to hear anything to the contrary. As a result, we avoid discussing the issues that are so important to the future of our country.

We build walls around our opinions to avoid contrasting facts and we only enter those places that echo our own beliefs. Are we too stubborn to concede to different ideas, or too lazy to reconsider what we think we already know?

Albert Einstein said, "It takes a touch of genius - and a lot of courage - to move in the opposite direction."

But that's what we need to do. We surely are not getting any place fast on the path we're on.

So how do we get there? First, we have to quit insulting each other when we disagree. While we may view other opinions as uninformed, illogical, or just plain stupid, embracing that position only deepens the divide among us.

Second, we need to seek the common ground that unites us. Places where we do agree, and then proceed from there. Think about it, we have so much in common. Dismissing one another ignores an undisputable truth: We desperately need each other to survive on our little planet.

And finally, we need to make space to laugh with each other. To celebrate the successes of humanity and share our intrinsic kindness and compassion with others.

I know this may sound simplistic, but it's certainly a start, and a much better place than where we are right now.

ning position he held was with Rockingham County, before joining the Piedmont Triad Regional Council (PTRC) in Kernersville as a regional planner. He then returned to Rockingham County, to work as a senior planner.

He studied at UNC Chapel Hill and UNC Greensboro at both undergraduate and graduate levels. Planning became an interest of his while studying urban and regional planning.

"I have lived most of my life in Winston-Salem and have been familiar with Lewisville for years, remembering when the town first incorporated in the early 1990s," he said. While he said he was comfortable in his position at Rockingham County, he felt that joining Lewisville would be a good opportunity to continue his career with a directing position.

"I'm excited to lend the knowledge and experience I have towards helping Lewisville achieve its goals," Cochran said. "Place-making is key in creating thriving smaller towns and I hope to be a part of that."

Cochran is a native North Carolinian who has always lived in the Piedmont Triad region, mainly Winston-Salem. He enjoys traveling the United States and visiting the Pacific coast. He's a dog dad to a one-year-old boxer mix named Digby, who keeps him on his toes. When he's not chasing after Digby, he enjoys gardening and has been a keen gardener for over 25 years. "I grow everything from ferns to hostas to roses... I've never met a perennial I didn't like!"

Please join us in welcoming Lynn Cochran to Lewisville. We are excited to have him on board and look forward to his contributions and achievements with us.

What's (Not) Good for the Goose...

As you've passed by or through Jack Warren Park lately, you've probably noticed things are a little wilder in places than they used to be. While you may be tempted to think the Town has violated its own unkept yard policy, this is actually part of our Canada Goose management plan. When the land associated with the Mary Alice Warren Community Center transitioned from row crops and trees to routinely mowed open space it became a magnet for the geese, and with geese comes goose poop. In order to keep this unsanitary substance off everyone's shoes and children, we needed a plan to encourage the birds to return to whichever golf course they came from. Town Council required that we not be lethal, and they urged that we look for creative solutions. In the end, staff came up with a multi-dimensional approach that first dealt with how we were managing the land. Neatly mowed, open turf areas like the fields around the building were attractive as safe landing and feeding spots. Geese don't want to land or walk in vegetation they can't see through and they love to eat fresh grass. By simply changing our

Environmental Conservation & Sustainability Committee (ECSC)

School is in session and pools are closing, but it is still hot! Autumn officially begins on September 22nd. In recent years, fall's cool weather takes longer to arrive. What can we do?

You've heard it all before: Insulate your home to spend less on heating and cooling. Consolidate your errands to drive less. Buy energy-efficient equipment (with rebates!) when updating major appliances. Support climate initiatives. And remember: refuse, reduce, and reuse before you recycle.

However, to recycle all the items you can, plan to attend the next Special Recycling Event on October 26 from 9 -1, next to Shallowford Square. ECSC volunteers will be there to take and sort your special recyclables, so you won't even have to get out of your car. Hopefully, you've been saving items since June, when the newest Recycling Poster arrived in the Citizen. If not, start now! If we all do a little, it adds up to a lot. Posters are available at the Town Hall or go to lewisvillenc.net/specialrecycling to see all the weird and wonderful items we recycle. See you in October!

mowing practices on those large areas, we dramatically cut back on preferred habitat for them, while simultaneously creating habitat for songbirds and pollinators. In the spaces where we couldn't change our mowing practices, like the building lawn and the sports field, we have used liquid and granular repellents that are safe for people but make the grass taste bad to the geese. In addition, we've planted groups of native ornamental grasses to eventually create visual and physical barriers around the parking lots. So far, the geese are cooperating. Sorry golfers.

Town staff has been training on all the resources available through the National Weather Service and the list of online services available is impressive. One term we've grown fond of is -- "If it's weather you love, it's Weather.gov". To stay up-to-date on all things weather, explore this website.
